AFRICANA STUDIES RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM

KEYNOTE ADDRESS

Meditations on Global Blackness

Dr. Sherwin Bryant, Rice University

Dr. Sherwin Bryant will join us in Lumina Theater to speak about what it means to effectively connect local and global Black scholarship in our current moment, bridging research across time, culture, and location. Dr. Bryant is the new Director of Rice University's Center for African and African American Studies and an Associate Professor. His vast body of research has explored topics from the lives of African-descended peoples in the Pacific Lowlands of South America to the history of Black communal formation in Brunswick County, North Carolina.

Monday, March 25, 2024

6:30 - 7:30 p.m., Lumina Theater

UNCW faculty, staff, and students are also invited to attend a Pre-Keynote Networking Reception in Clock Tower Lounge in Fisher Student Center from 5:00-6:30 pm

For more information, visit lib.uncw.edu/afnsymposium

UNCW
EEO/AA Institution

This symposium is co-sponsored by Randall Library, the Office of Research & Innovation, the College of Humanities, Social Sciences, & the Arts, and the Office of Institutional Diversity & Inclusion. Those who would like to inquire about access or request disability accommodations may contact Kiana Webster at websterk@uncw.edu.